Based on the results of this investigation, The Patent's Office is considering the rejection of the present invention. This application tries to suggest a method to the extraction of nickel and cobalt from laterite minerals. The applicant suggests dividing the material in a fragment of improved grade and one of low grade, to process them separately, extracting the nickel and cobalt from the fragment of lower grade through an acid's lixiviation process. This solution was anticipated in documents D01 and D02. These documents show a method to extract nickel and cobalt through an acid, hence the present application can not be considered as inventive. Your comments on this reference and a new amended version of claims are requested, in order to study the application again, and decide if it can be accepted or rejected.

We will really appreciate your comments on the above. The deadline to file a response is April 28, 2008.

Please let us know if you have any doubt or question.

Sincerely yours,
LEXINCORP -PI-
